TWO MEN CHASED ROBBERS AND WERE FIRED UPON.

One of the Quarry Got Away, but Negro Was Captured-Sequel to Recent Robbery.

Another chapter to the daring daylight robbery of William Dawson's house at Fifty-sixth street and Central avenue, Sunday afternoon, was added yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of William Wishard near Southport. Wishard was in his field sowing fall wheat when he saw a house door was open. Knowing that no one was at home, Wishard thought it singular and immediately walked to the house. When he arrived at the front yard he saw a phaeton buggy, with a negro in it, standing at the front gate. Wishard went met by a white man, who began at once to He struck Wishard over the read with a hatchet handle. Wishard wrested the weapon from the man and began beating him severely. The two men ought until they reached the outer gate. Wishard had got the upper hand of his adversary and had him almost subdued negro jumped from the buggy and assisted the white man in whipping Wishard. After knocking Wishard down the two jumped into the rig again and drove toward Indianapolis. Wishard folowed the men, and on the way W. C. Stewart, another farmer in his field, took one of his horses and helped chase the two men. The pursuit continued until the party reached Hermann's farm, west of Indianwhen the white man, seeing that he was liable to be captured, jumped from the buggy and began firing on Wishard and Stewart. His aim was bad, but the two men held back to escape the fusiliade of bullets. In a short time the chase was again taken up, and the white man, seeing again that he was likely to be caught, amped from the buggy and escaped to the The negro was captured by Stewart and Wishard and brought to this city. He gave his name as Henry Waiters. He is charged with housebreaking. When he was searched one of the rings said to be stolen from Dawson's house was found on him. The rig which the men had is one hired from Moberley's stable on Bismarck avenue yesterday afternoon. It is said that a man came to the stable and asked for a rig for one week, as he intended selling cligars in the surrounding country. The rig was given to the man, and is the same as the one taken from the negro when he Waiters said that for a year and a half past he has resided in Anderson. Last year the police of this city and Anderson were much annoyed by the reports of stolen rigs. It has since been learned that Waiters was in the habit of hiring a rig in Anderson and driving to this city and disposing of the rig. Then he would hire one and drive to Anderson and dispose Wishard brought a bloody handkerchief and a collar to the police station that he said belonged to the white man with whom he had the encounter. It is thought by the police that the white man is one of the en who robbed Dawson's house Sunday afternoon of several valuable rings and a The rig that was found outside Dawson's house has been identified as the property of Jonathan Curry, of Tipton.

Stealing of Bodies Causes Excitement

in New Augusta.

The taking of the body of Mrs. Rose Neidlinger from her grave in Pleasant Hill Cemetery has caused excitement in the vicinity of Traders Point and New Augusta. Yesterday the grave of Moses Gwin, who was buried two days before Mrs. Neidlinger, was opened, but the body had not been disturbed. Relatives of Gwin at first thought it best to not open the grave, but his widow, who is eighty-two years old, heard of the stealing of Mrs Niedlinger's body and insisted that the body of her husband be exhumed. On account of her feeble condition the request was granted. The relatives of Mrs. Davenport, who died three weeks ago, became uneasy and requested that her grave be

SMALL AUDIENCE CHEERS GENERAL SMITH AND CAPTAIN HOBSON.

The Soldier's Address in the Nature o an Appeal for Personal Justice from the Public.

AMERICA, HE SAYS, SHOULD CON-TROL YELLOW PEOPLE'S DESTINY.

Spanish-American War Veterans' As sociation to Elect Officers in Sessions To-Day.

Those in charge of a meeting of Spanish American War Veterans and the general bined in one grand organization. public at Tomlinson Hall last evening were disappointed at the size of the audience. About 300 persons assembled. Mr. Root, secretary of war, was taken to the hall, but it was not thought worth while to ask him to speak to so small a crowd. There was some talk of dismissing the audience, but this was not done, and it heard what it felt to be a plea for personal justice by Brig. Gen. Jacob H. Smith. He and his friends, it was known, believed that a wrong had been done to him by the military authorities. There was further sentimental interest in him because of his sobriquet of "Hell Roarin' Jake," indicating a man mighty in prowess and appearance. When he was introduced by Colonel Jewett he was seen to be slight in physique, but straight in form and vigorous

There was a great deal of cheering when ness, where he had been fighting a cruel and treacherous foe. He wondered that more citizens did not avail themselves of the opportunity to hear General Smith speak. The general read from a manuscript a statement of his experiences in the Philippines, devoted most of his attention to his last campaign in Samar, where, it has been alleged, he issued a most niquitous order to "kill and burn. "Fighting is my business," he declared, "and as I was sent there for that purpose

I decided to give them just the style of goods they ordered." The people he had to deal with, the general said, were without the thinest coating of civilization and brutally massacred the soldiers that had cared for their sick and tried to put them in a better way of living. His men found there were no roads leading into the interior of Samar, where the people had fled from the villages, which were all on the coast. The Americans had to proceed single file through the jungle. their clothing wet, their feet cut by the sharp coral rock and their bodies ulcerated by the stings of insects. The natives could not be caught in the wilderness, and General Smith adopted a plan of cutting off the food supplies of the towns so that sustenance could not be sent to the fugitives in the interior.

At this stage, General Smith said, he ordered his subordinates to burn the huts in the interior. Following the carrying out of this campaign the women and children returned to the coast villages, leaving only the fighting men in the jungle on the mountain sides. General Smith then treated with the leaders of the Samar warriors and was just about to arrange terms of peace when he was "called to America General Smith said and his audience apparently took his side against his prosecutors, for the applause was fervent and were frequent shouts of "You're general!" The general was very much in earnest, but he softened at the close of his address, when he had a few words to say about "the ladies." The American women were to be cerdited with the courage and nobility of the American soldiery, in his opinion

CAPTAIN HOBSON'S OPINIONS. General Smith's allusion to "the ladies" caused a broad smile to illumine the hitherto grave face of Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, who sat just behind the strenuous fighter from Samar. But no levity was visible or audible when Captain Hobson spoke. He delivered his tribute to "glorious woman," but he was serious about it. Few as demonstrative speakers as Captain Hobson have been heard in this city in late years. He praised the soldiers and sailors of the country, from Washington and Jones to Smith and Dewey, Federals and Confederates. "The civil war was a simple sociological necessity," he declared. If the northerners had lived in the South and the southerners in the North, he said, each would have done as the other did. He spoke as a son of Alabama. The South was grateful, he said, that it had been kept from seceding. It was as an extreme expansionist that an American citizen than the crown prince of a European kingdom, he avowed. He believed it would be cowardly and selfish in the United States if it permitted the material and spiritual development of the yellow and black races to be directed according to the harsh methods of the European monarchical systems. He would extend the Monroe doctrine to China and other parts of Asia. America, incidentally, was in duty bound to share in foreign markets. The moral of his address was that the United States should proceed immediately to build the greatest navy in the world, so that it could control the seas and so control the destinies of the hordes Captain Hobson worked the soldiers in his audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm and was rewarded with as many cheers as General Smith received. He disclaimed special approval for his feat at Santiago

SPEECHES OF THE AFTERNOON.

Gen. Jacob H. Smith, Retired, and Commander R. P. Hobson.

The encampment of the Spanish-American War Veterans was called to order so late yesterday afternoon in the Senate chamber of the Statehouse that little business was transacted. The news that President Roosevelt had been taken to St. Vincent's Hospital spread among the delegates, and the fact that the nature of his ailment was not generally known caused great anxiety for awhile. The auditing committee, which is investigating the books of W. C. Liller, announced that it could not make a report before to-day. After a few speeches efforts were made to take up routine business and the nominations of officers, but a motion to adjourn was placed before the encampment shortly after 5 o'clock and it was carried. States army officer, of Portsmouth, O., was first introduced and said: "Comrades, I thank you from the bottom of my heart | W. E. Hayward. The committee of ten for the reception and the privilege you have given me of being present with the Spanish-American War Veterans. I am oaded, gentlemen, with a speech for tonight, and I will now say thank you." After General Smith's remarks Commander Richmond P. Hobson, U. S. N., was introduced.

"Comrades-I am very happy that I have the honor to be present at the third annual encampment of the Spanish-American War A pretty floral souvenir will be given to Veterans, and must say, that like my disevery lady who attends. Veterans and renewing that comradeship which we all find in association. As General Smith has stated, this is a business session, and I will have to say again that I am empty this afternoon. But I shall look to be with you this evening, and I assure you of the pleasure that it will give me to address the comrades of the Span-ish-American war. "There are a great many responsibilities which the veterans of this war will be called upon to take care of, as the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic were called upon to take up after the close of the civil war. We shall be called upon to take up the work and the programmes of the Grand Army, which cover over a half century. In addition to this, young men, we should think of the great policies of our country in the future and should be proud of being born American citizens. Having inherited a rich heritage, we are called upon as an organization to do this work in a manner befitting the greatest and grandest country in the world."

Commander Hobson said he had a talk with the commander of the Spanish war veterans relative to the amalgamation of the two orders, and believes that it will not be long until such an amalgamation takes

Adjutant General Smock, of the Indiana Department of the G. A. R., was the next speaker. He said it gave him great pleasure to meet some of the young blood of the United States, men who went to the front when the call was made by President McKinley for troops to do battle against Spain. Chaplain Watts, of the Indiana G. A. R., was introduced to the encampment, and he said he hoped to see the day when both of the organizations of the soldiers of the late war would be com-

Election of Officers.

There promises to be a lively time at the election of officers of the Spanish-American War Veterans to-day. There are several candidates for the office of commander-inchief. Those who have been prominently mentioned for that office are Col. D. 'Jack" Foster, of Illinois; Governor Durbin, of Indiana, and Department Commander Charles L. Jewett, of New Albany.

AMALGAMATION FAVORED.

Action of Detroit Convention of Spanish-American War Veterans.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.-Less than 100 accredited delegates were present this morning, when the Spanish-American War Veterans met Capt. Wilson I. Davenny, of Chicago, a representative of the United Service Men of the Spanish War, who was Colonel Jewett said that judgment on this | tendered the floor for a fraternal speech, in quiet civil life, but in the tropical wilder- fully to the posibility of amalgamating the different associations of Spanish war veterans. He said that President Roosevelt urged him yesterday to aid the movement toward amalgamation, "and," said Captain Davenny, "if amalgamation can be arranged on a basis that will be just and equitable to all, you will not find me in the way."

A resolution favoring amalgamation with the Spanish-American War Veterans was introduced by Col. Champe Andrews, of New York, and it was enthusiastically adopted by acclamation. Not a dissenting voice was heard. The resolution provides the appointment of a commitof five, to meet with a simicommittee from the Spanish-American War Veterans, and discuss the details and arrange for amalgamation. Gen. J Warren Keifer, the first president of the society, and a number of other delegates spoke in favor of the proposition before a vote was taken on the resolution.

This afternoon the following officers were elected: Commander-in-chief, Colonel M. Emet Urell, Washington, D. C.; senior vice commander-in-chief, Harold C. Me-grew, Indianapolis; junior vice commanderin-chief, Champ S. Andrews, New York; judge advocate general, Captain Hamilton Ward, jr., Buffalo; inspector general, I. N. Kenney, Bay City, Mich.; chaplain general, Rev. Father W. H. I. Reaney, U. S. N., (re-elected); surgeon general, Dr. Louis Livingston Seeman, New York; sponsor, Miss Clara Barton, Glenn Echo, Md., reelected by acclamation. To-night Commander-in-chief Urell ap pointed the following committee on amalramation: Colonel F. G. Ward, Buffalo; Colonel C. S. Anderws, New York; Captain Lee M. Lipscomb, District of Columbia; Major Charles R. Miller, Indianapolis; Rev. Father Reaney, U. S. N Cleveland and Milwaukee are candidates for the next reunion. The choice will be made to-morrow. The appointments of adjutant general and quartermaster gen-

COUNCIL WILL MEET IN SPECIAL SESSION TO-MORROW NIGHT.

Finance Committee Will Probably Re port Favorably on the Mayor's Recommendations.

Mayor Bookwalter will issue a call today for a special session of the Council tomorrow night to consider the tax levy and appropriation ordinances. It is probable that the finance committee will submit a favorable report on the tax levy, as recommended by the mayor without reduction, and also the appropriations as reduced. Mayor Bookwalter will probably not send to the Council a report of his action on the ordinance passed increasing the pay of members of the fire department, but will do so at the first meeting in October. The mayor has acted on the ordinance, but what this action is has not been announced. There is no doubt, however, that it is anything else than a vete. In his communication it is understood the mayor will give many reasons for his action.

LOVER TOOK HIS LIFE.

Eben L. Rist Wanted to Marry an Unwilling Actress.

Miss Francette Girard, living with her mother at 613 South Pine street, has returned from Anderson, where she went through a shocking ordeal Monday, caused by the suicide of Eben L. Rist, of Cincinnati. He took carbolic acid because the girl refused to marry him. Miss Girard had accepted the attentions paid by Rist. The latter became so devoted that he was embarrassing the girl. She is a variety actress and while playing an engagement in Cincinnati recently met Rist. He had followed her about on her tours, and late Sunday night came here when he learned that she was at home. He asked her to marry him, but she refused. Rist followed the girl to Anderson Monday and again asked her to marry him. She refused, and, with a bottle of acid in his hand, he told her that he would kill himself. He carried out his plans and died in an amoulance about one hour after he made the threat. Miss Girard came home yesterday and is now in a very nervous state.

JOHNSON AND HER CHILD RESCUED BY FIREMEN.

Imprisoned by Fire in Third Story of the Polk Flats They Were Caught on a Mattress.

THE BABY OUT FIRST

CHILD UNINJURED BY A FALL OF OVER THIRTY FEET.

Firemen Worked Heroically to Spare the Woman the Dangerous Rescue-Fire Loss Small.

A fire that jeopardized two lives and furnished a dramatic though dangerous rescue occurred late yesterday afternoon in the Polk flats at Sixteenth street and College avenue. These flats occupy the second and third stories of the pressed brick building erected about two years ago by the J. T. Polk Sanitary Milk Company, which occupies the ground floor for its creamery and milk business.

The fire started near the apartments of Elden Tilson on the third floor. It was caused by a plumber, John Griffith, who ignited two gasoline cans, each containing five gallons, by the explosion of his gasoline melting furnace. The two cans made a great explosion and immediately ignited the stairway between the second and third floors, thus shutting off the descent from the third floor. It also prevented escape from the apartments occupied by Ernest Johnson. Griffith was not near the explo-

A number of boys ran to the fire station ersing, as it does, so many fields of conthe rear of the Polk building, and shouted "Fire." This is a frequent practice of the boys and like the old fable of the cry, "Wolf! Wolf!" was not at first heeded. The captain, Tom Howard, went out to investigate and found that the alarm was well founded. The company turned out

Just as it reached the building a woman with a baby was seen at a third-story window on the Sixteenth-street side. She appeared frantic and seemed about to throw herself from the window. There were many excited men in the street, and they called to her to not leap from the window, but to wait. She shouted that the fire was coming up the stairway and that she would have to leap to save herself. She prepared to leap several times, but yielded to the warnings not to. The woman was Mrs. Maud Johnson, wife of Ernest Johnson, and her fifteen-months-old boy baby. Captain Howard ran back to the engine house and seized a mattress from one of the cots. Returning with this he placed it in a tarpaulin that is used to cover the hose wagon and thus formed a life net. He called for assistance to accomplish the rescue as the firemen had attempted to enter the building and reach this stairway and found they could not. Charles D. Githens, Albert A. Womack, ex-sheriff, Charles Peggs, William Pohl and Sylvester Elzey supported the net and Mrs. Johnson was asked to throw out the child. She appeared more collected by this time and tossed the baby directly into the net. The distance was over thirty feet. The spectators were breathless while this was being done. The baby struck the mattress, rolled over and cried. Except for a slight bruise on its eye it was uninjured, but by its cries appeared to be badly scared. MRS. JOHNSON LEAPS. Mrs. Johnson, seeing that the child was safe, did not hesitate to throw herself from the window. She alighted on her feet in the net, her weight bearing it to the ground. As her feet touched the ground she fell against the brick wall of the building and was badly bruised about the shoulders. The whole performance was intensely exciting and attracted an immense crowd. The fire company is composed entirely of colored men and they worked heroically to extinguish the flames so that the necessity of a leap from the window would be spared Mrs. Johnson. The quick magnitude of the fire was astonishing and Captain Howard does not know of any explanation except that the burning gasoline must have spread over a considerable area. It would have been impossible he said, for Mrs. Johnson to have descended the stairway and not knowing how large the fire was on the floor where she was imprisoned, he felt she did wisely in jumping. The fire made such progress that soon the windows about Mrs. Johnson poured forth smoke in great volumes and gave the appearance of immensity. However when the flames had been extinguished it was found that the stairway was the most damaged. The department estimated the loss on the building at $50. Last night both Mrs. Johnson and the baby were practically over the shock of their experience and Mrs. Johnson's injuries were found to be of a trivial nature. Spectators praise the woman for her excellent judgment and also the heroic work of the firemen who attempted to ascend to her apartments to make a rescue.

SECRETARY ROOT WAS HERE.

He Inspected the Arsenal Grounds

Alone During the Morning. Secretary of War Elihu Root preceded the President in his arrival in this city. Mr. Root came in Monday morning for the purpose partly of driving out to the arsenal grounds and making an inspection of the government property. He was not registered at any of the hotels and did not volunteer the information as to where he stayed.

Yesterday morning he went alone to the arsenal grounds and looked the property over carefully. On his return from the arsenal he made a quiet investigation of the technical school prospects. Mr. Root was extremely close mouthed about the results of his visit and would make no statement for publication. In the afternoon he visited the President at the Columbia Club and remained there until the President was taken to the hospital. He left last night for Peoria.

SUSPECT ARRESTED.

Detectives Capture Young Man Who Answered Description.

Railroad detectives yesterday notified the police department that two pickpockets had been robbing passengers on trains and that they had been unable to capture them. It was said the men got off in this city. Detectives Asch and Manning were detailed to hunt for the men. Last night about o'clock while the detectives were passing Fletcher's Bank they met a young man that answered in every detail the dliscription given of the two pickpockets by the railroad officers. The young man was approached and questioned by the detectives. He objected and when the detectives displayed their authority the young man became offensive. The detectives then decided to take the young man to the police station. On the way he became enraged and bit Asch on the hand. He fought and the detectives had to carry him to the station. He gave his name as Robert English. He was charged with loltering until something can be learned about him.

Receipts of State Fair.

Secretary Downing, of the State Board of Agriculture, says the total receipts of the State fair last week were in the neighborhood of $62,000. The gate receipts were about $30,000, and the remainder of the receipts were from entries in exhibits, for privileges and from miscellaneous sources. The expenditures were between $47,000 and $48,000. The profit, which will not exceed $5,000, will be applied on the debt the board owes for 134 acres of land purchased last Everett Bushing Injured.

Everett Bushing, a driver of a gravel wagon, met with a street-car accident yesterday at the corner of Senate and Indiana avenues. Bushing tried to cross the street when car No. 537, on the North Indianapolis line, struck the wagon. Bushing was thrown from the wagon and suffered several injuries. His nose was broken and he received several cuts on the head and neck. He was taken to his home, 1801 South Olive street, in the City Dispensary ambulance.
